

Fair and Just Prosecution Summer Fellows Program

An Opportunity to Shape New Thinking in Criminal Justice and Help Promote a New Vision for the 21st Century Prosecutor

What Is the Fair and Just Prosecution Summer Fellows Program?

Fair and Just Prosecution (FJP), a nonprofit bringing together and supporting recently-elected reform-minded prosecutors committed to promoting a fairer and more equitable justice system, is looking for passionate students to participate in the third year of its Summer Fellows Program. The program places rising 2L and 3L FJP Summer Fellows in summer internship positions in the offices of some of the most inspiring elected prosecutors in the country.

Summer Fellows, who will be part of a diverse cohort of accomplished law students interested in criminal justice reform, will have a unique opportunity to receive hands-on experience working on criminal cases and other assignments typical of internships in prosecutor's offices while also undertaking a policy reform project on an issue of interest to that office. Participating students, who may apply to receive a modest summer stipend, will benefit from access to the resources, network, and activities of FJP, including engagement with leading thinkers and advocates nationwide.

An Opportune Moment

Great strides have been made over the past few years in promoting criminal justice reforms that recognize that prior "tough on crime" and incarceration-driven practices don't always produce safer or healthier communities. New thinking has started to permeate the justice system and has prompted proactive and prevention-oriented strategies.

Against that backdrop, a new generation of reform-minded state and local elected prosecutors committed to changing their office culture and promoting a less punitive approach to addressing crime has come into office. Newly elected DAs in geographic areas ranging from Brooklyn, Boston, and Philadelphia to smaller rural communities are pushing back against the "law and order/tough on crime" rhetoric of past decades and elevating a national conversation around the importance of a fair, equitable and right-sized justice system.

FJP brings together these reform-minded and innovative elected prosecutors as part of a network of leaders committed to promoting a justice system grounded in fairness, equity, compassion, and fiscal responsibility.

The Benefits of the FJP Summer Fellows Program

The FJP Summer Fellows Program aims to redefine what it means to be a prosecutor. The Program is designed for students interested in exploring careers in criminal justice reform and who have a passion for justice and fairness; who can bring to a prosecutor's office greater diversity of thought, background, and experience; who recognize the central role that the prosecutor has in shaping our criminal justice priorities; and who are interested in influencing this new thinking. Participating students will work in offices led by reform-minded prosecutors, where there exist opportunities to affect long-term change. Summer Fellows may also apply to receive a modest need-based stipend.

What Will an FJP Summer Fellow Do?

FJP Summer Fellows will participate in a variety of activities during their placements, including assisting with intake and trial preparation, sitting in on witness interviews, assisting with discovery and filings, conducting legal research and writing, and conferencing with supervisors on cases, depending on the needs of the office. Eligible students in certain offices may argue motions in court and handle evidentiary hearings.

Summer Fellows will regularly engage with one another and with elected leaders in the FJP network to discuss critical issues in criminal justice reform and will also undertake a policy reform project during their summers (which they may continue into the fall term, possibly for credit on an independent-study basis and with FJP's guidance). Potential areas of focus for policy reform projects include but are not limited to:

- The importance of conviction integrity review, transparency, and accountability;
- Fortifying public trust and enhancing community outreach and engagement;
- Rethinking the handling of drug offenses and diverting appropriate people from the justice system;
- Investing in reentry approaches and ameliorating the collateral consequences of convictions;
- Developing data-driven practices and changing how success is measured in prosecutors' offices; and
- Rethinking application of the death penalty and juvenile life without parole sentencing.

District Attorney / Public Defender Summer Split

FJP is pleased to continue and grow an additional component of the Summer Fellows Program: the District Attorney/ Public Defender Summer Split. A select group of highly committed Fellows will have the opportunity to split their summers between a DA's and PD's Office, gaining invaluable experience working with advocates on both sides of the system and identifying areas where these offices can come together to better serve those who come into contact with the criminal justice system. Participating Fellows will develop a policy reform project on a topic of importance to both offices in which they work.

How Do I Apply?

To apply submit a resume; a cover letter describing your interest in criminal justice reform, any geographic or office preferences and whether you would like to be considered for the FJP District Attorney/Public Defender split opportunity; a law school transcript (1Ls who have not yet received their fall grades may instead submit an undergraduate transcript); and a brief (5 to 10 page) writing sample to FJPFellow@fairandjustprosecution.org. Please note any time exigencies and inform us when/if they arise.

Applications from 2Ls will be considered on a rolling basis, with interested students ideally applying by December 17, 2019. 2Ls who can commit a minimum of five weeks to the Summer Fellows Program may be permitted to split their summers. Applications from 1Ls will be reviewed after December 1, 2019, with interested students ideally applying by January 14, 2020.

FJP strongly values diversity, and students of all backgrounds are encouraged to apply.
