August 12, 2022

Honorable Tani G. Cantil-Sakauye, Chief Justice
Honorable Associate Justices
Supreme Court of California
350 McAllister Street
San Francisco, CA 94102

Re: Letter of Amicus Curiae, Current and Former Elected Prosecutors and Attorneys General, in Support of Petition for Review

George Gascón, as District Attorney, etc. et al., Petitioners v. The Association of Deputy District Attorneys for Los Angeles County, Respondents, No. S275478
Appeal from Judgment of Second App. District, Div. 7, No. B310845

Dear Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Court:

Pursuant to Rule 8.500(g) of the California Rules of Court, Amici Curiae, Current and Former Elected Prosecutors and Attorneys General, respectfully request that this Court grant District Attorney George Gascón’s petition for review in this case.

I. Interest of Amici

As a national group of 73 current and former elected prosecutors and Attorneys General, amici have a deep understanding of the important role that prosecutorial discretion plays in the criminal justice system, and we are extremely concerned that the Court of Appeal’s ruling in this case undermines, in unprecedented fashion, the longstanding constitutional authority, autonomy, and responsibility of elected prosecutors.

We know of no other precedent or law in the country where prosecutors are forced to file and prove enhancements over their expressed objections. Indeed, the essence of the Court’s ruling and its interpretation of the three strikes law threatens the very core of the prosecutor’s well settled discretion and role as an elected official, while eroding the separation between branches of government that are essential to a well-functioning, healthy democracy. This ruling undermines the essential building blocks upon which our legal system is built, and therefore, will erode public trust along with it.

Prosecutors are elected and sworn to uphold the law and protect public safety, and District Attorney (“DA”) Gascón’s policies at issue here do just that. No prosecutor has the ability and resources to prosecute every case and every violation of the law — nor should they. As such, it is well settled that elected prosecutors make decisions about where and how limited resources are best exercised and what cases merit entry into the justice system.

A prosecutor’s broad discretion over whom to prosecute, what offenses to charge, and what proof to present, also encompasses the ability to determine what penalties and sentences to seek, and whether to pursue available sentencing enhancements in order to best protect community safety and advance justice. The exercise of this discretion is especially critical when proving an enhancement requires the office to expend limited and precious resources. This authority to decide what to plead and prove is enshrined in separation of powers principles included in most state constitutions, including California’s, and their federal counterpart. Furthermore, an elected district attorney must be able to guide the exercise of discretion by his deputies and the use of inherently limited criminal justice resources through transparent and straightforward policies. Indeed, the district attorney is elected by the community to do exactly that — and is accountable to the voters for those decisions.

Because the issues raised by this case have national significance, amici come not only from California, but also from jurisdictions across the country. Although amici’s views may differ as to when and if a particular sentencing enhancement should be sought, amici come together in our steadfast belief that an elected prosecutor cannot effectively carry out his or her constitutional responsibilities if he or she cannot ensure that employees implement officewide policies and is, instead, forced to charge and prove offenses and seek penalties that, in the elected prosecutor’s judgment, do not advance public safety or serve the interests of justice. Amici are also intimately familiar with the challenges of effectively and efficiently running an office in times of limited resources, as well as transforming office culture and ideas about justice; these challenges require decisions and leadership by the elected office head and clear instructions that guide deputy discretion and avoid disparate results based on the views and happenstance of the individual prosecutor in the case. For all of these reasons, we are deeply troubled by the Los Angeles Association of Deputy District Attorneys’ use of the court to usurp the power of the elected district attorney and override the lawful, discretionary policy decisions of an official who was chosen by the voters of Los Angeles to transform the criminal justice system in that community. We are also deeply troubled by the appellate court’s problematic interpretation of the three strikes laws in a manner that dictates prosecutorial charging and pleading practices. Absent review, this decision will result in a host of problems and uncertainty around fundamental questions of prosecutorial discretion. This case, and the pending petition, presents an important opportunity to resolve these issues.

For all these reasons, amici have an interest in preserving the proper roles and responsibilities in the criminal legal system, both between the elected official and his deputies, and between the elected official and the judiciary. We offer our views here respectfully as friends of the Court.
II. Background

Los Angeles County, which has more than 10 million residents, is home to the nation’s largest local criminal justice system. Over the past few years, the District Attorney in Los Angeles implemented a number of “tough-on-crime” policies, seeking harsh sentences, including the death penalty and gang enhancements, and opposed many criminal justice reform efforts. As a direct result of these policies, Los Angeles County’s prison incarceration rate was well above the state average, and over five times as high as that of San Francisco.

In 2020, Los Angeles voters elected George Gascón, the former District Attorney of San Francisco County. Gascón has long been committed to reforming the criminal justice system, reducing incarceration, and focusing on public safety rather than punishment for its own sake. During his campaign, Gascón was open and transparent about his vision for the office and the changes to prosecutorial practices he intended to implement. These reforms included ending death penalty prosecutions, severely limiting the use of money bail, stopping the criminalization of mental illness and homelessness, and curtailing lengthy prison sentences and the use of sentencing enhancements. These objectives are all consistent with the boundaries of the legal system and the sound exercise of prosecutorial discretion. Indeed, most prosecutors in America have elected to end the use of the death penalty, regardless of political affiliation, and many prosecutors simply do not allocate resources to seeking jail or prison time for low-level offenses.

The Los Angeles community elected Gascón, over opposition by the Association of Deputy District Attorneys (“ADDA”), to carry out these promises and bring a new vision to the Los Angeles criminal legal system. Upon taking office, DA Gascón immediately sought to reform a

---

2 Id.
3 In 2016, Los Angeles County’s prison incarceration rate was 608 per 1,000 felony arrests. The statewide average was 446. San Francisco County’s rate was 131. See Center on Juvenile and Criminal Justice, 2016 Los Angeles and San Francisco prison incarceration rates, California Sentencing Institute, http://casi.cjcj.org/Adult/Los-Angeles and http://casi.cjcj.org/Adult/San-Francisco.
6 The Death Penalty in 2021, the Death Penalty Information Center (available at https://deathpenaltyinfo.org/facts-and-research/dpic-reports/dpic-year-end-reports/the-death-penalty-in-2021-year-end-report) (finding that 2021 was the seventh consecutive year with fewer than 50 new death sentences).
number of long-standing prosecutorial practices in his office — practices that research shows had not only ballooned California’s incarcerated population, but also offered little if any benefit to public safety. In fact, according to the FBI’s Uniform Crime Report and population data, between 2012 and 2018, violent crime rates in Los Angeles County increased by 31%. Ultimately there is no research that shows sentencing enhancements improve public safety, but there is evidence that excessive sentences increase recidivism and therefore create more victims in the future.

Voters elected DA Gascón to reverse these trends, and his policies are based in empirical evidence and designed to advance public safety, community health, and equal justice throughout Los Angeles. Among the new policies were directives that sought to curtail the use of several sentencing enhancements, including those that are among California’s most notorious, draconian, and racially disparate penalties — gang enhancements, mandatory life sentences, and “three strikes” enhancements. These penalties have also shown little public safety benefit, while Petitioner’s Ex Parte Application for a Temporary Restraining Order and an Order to Show Cause, 2 (Dec. 29, 2020) (Appellant’s Appendix, Vol, 1, A163-290) (seeking a temporary restraining order enjoining George Gascón and the Los Angeles County District Attorney’s Office from ordering compliance with “Any portion of the Special Directives that prohibit the Los Angeles County District Attorney’s Office, or any of its Deputy District Attorneys or prosecutors, from pleading and proving prior strikes under California’s Three Strikes Sentencing Initiative (Penal Code §§ 667(b)–(i), 1170.12); any portion of the Special Directives that require the Los Angeles County District Attorney’s Office, or any of its Deputy District Attorneys or prosecutors, to move to dismiss from any pending criminal action any of the following: any draining much needed legal, judicial, police, jail, and state prison resources. Under these directives, the office still held people who caused harm accountable, but the elected DA opted to not seek decades-long sentences that put people in prison for longer than necessary.

Through this litigation, some of Gascón’s employees have asked the courts for permission to defy their new boss. But it is Gascón, as the elected District Attorney, who is responsible for policy decisions within the office and accountable to voters, not his line prosecutors. See Cal. Gov. Code § 26500 (“The public prosecutor shall attend the courts, and within his or her discretion shall initiate and conduct on behalf of the people all prosecutions for public offenses.”). And Gascón’s employees have also asked the courts to be complicit, to step in and define how Gascón should run his office. But it is Gascón, as the elected District Attorney, who is responsible for making decisions about how to use office resources, not the courts. By affirming — at least in part — the Superior Court’s ruling, the Appellate Court disrupted purely prosecutorial functions, interfered with Gascón’s administration within the District Attorney’s office, invaded the well-settled discretion of elected prosecutors, threatened principles of separation of powers, and thwarted the will of the Los Angeles County electorate. This type of judicial interference in the discretionary policy decisions of an elected prosecutor is unprecedented, strips the District Attorney of the inherent powers of his office, and deprives Los Angeles voters of the leadership and policy agenda they embraced at the polls. Indeed, we could not find another case in California where courts have overridden a prosecutor’s decision not to file charges or sentence enhancements and held that the opposite is true — that in every case, prosecutors are compelled to file and prove them.

Amici, a group of current and former elected prosecutors from across the country, submit this letter to add their voices to this important issue and to underscore their view that the lower court’s order is unconstitutional, intrusive, harmful, and undermines the exercise of prosecutorial discretion that is inherent in the responsibility of any elected prosecutor and critical to the functioning of our justice system.

prior-strike enhancements (Penal Code section 667(d), 667(e), 1170.12(a) and 1170.12(c)), including any second strikes and any strikes arising from a juvenile adjudication; any Prop 8 or “5-year prior” enhancements (Penal Code section 667(a)(1)) and “three-year prior” enhancements (Penal Code section 667.5(a)); STEP Act enhancements (“gang enhancements”) (Penal Code section 186.22 et. seq.); special circumstances allegations resulting in an LWOP sentence; violations of bail or O.R. release (Penal Code section 12022.1); firearm allegations pursuant to Penal Code section 12022.53; any portion of the Special Directives that require the Los Angeles County District Attorney’s Office, or any of its Deputy District Attorneys or prosecutors, to make a post-conviction motion to dismiss from any pending criminal action special circumstances allegations under Penal Code section 190.1 to 190.5; and any portion of the Special Directives that require the Los Angeles County District Attorney’s Office, or any of its Deputy District Attorneys or prosecutors, to move for leave to amend the charging document in any pending criminal action for the purpose of removing any allegations that they would otherwise be restrained and enjoined from moving to dismiss under Paragraphs 2 and 3.”).

12 Because the ADDA filed this action, rather than any actual deputies themselves, how many of Gascón’s employees support the current litigation and agree in full with its position and the many policies it challenges is unclear.
III. All prosecutors – including California District Attorneys – have well settled authority, free of court intervention, to make decisions that are fundamental to the allocation of scarce resources and the pursuit of justice

“The capacity of prosecutorial discretion to provide individualized justice is firmly entrenched in American law.” McCleskey v. Kemp, 481 U.S. 279, 311–12 (1987) (internal quotations omitted). Prosecutors exercise discretion on whether to charge cases, what charges and penalties to pursue, and what plea bargains to offer. As the California Supreme Court has held, district attorneys are “given complete authority” to enforce the state criminal law in their counties. Pitts v. County of Kern, 17 Cal. 4th 340, 358 (1998) (citation and punctuation omitted); see also Cal. Gov. Code § 26500. Because a district attorney has discretion on whom to charge in the first instance, the district attorney’s authority “is even stronger” when choosing among various punishments to plead and prove: “The decision of what charges to bring (or not to bring) — and, more to the point here, which sentencing enhancement to allege (or not to allege) — belongs to the prosecutors who are charged with executing our state’s criminal law.” People v. Garcia, 46 Cal. App. 5th 786, 791 (2020); see also People v. Birks, 19 Cal. 4th 108, 129 (1998) (“the prosecution, the traditional charging authority, has broad discretion to base its charging decisions on all the complex considerations pertinent to its law enforcement duties.”).

Further, as the petition for review persuasively argues, “the prosecutor’s decision not to charge a particular enhancement ‘generally is not subject to supervision’[.]” Id. The independence of the prosecutor is inherent in the separation of powers enshrined in both the United States and California Constitutions, and dates back to the founding of our country. U.S. Const. art. I, § 1, art. II, § 1, art. III, § 1; Ca. Const. art. III, § 3; see also J. Madison, Federalist No. 51. That separation — between the legislature’s ability to create laws, the executive (and therefore the prosecutor’s) decision whether to plead and prove them, and the judiciary’s ability to sentence — is critical to the functioning of our democracy, as the founding fathers clearly realized. Any decision to allocate the plead and prove authority to another branch, and thereby mandate prosecutorial actions that necessarily impact office policy and the use of limited resources, cuts to the core of our system of governance.

An elected prosecutor’s duty is to utilize their discretion to pursue justice and protect public safety. See Berger v. United States, 295 U.S. 78, 88 (1935) (A prosecutor “is the representative not of an ordinary party to a controversy, but of a sovereignty whose obligation to govern impartially is as compelling as its obligation to govern at all; and whose interest, therefore, in a criminal prosecution is not that it shall win a case, but that justice shall be done.”). In individual cases, the prosecutor has “a heightened duty to ensure the fairness of the outcome of a criminal proceeding from a substantive perspective — to ensure both that innocent people are not punished and that the guilty are not punished with undue harshness.” But seeking justice 13 See also Marc. L. Miller & Ronald F. Wright, The Black Box, 94 Iowa L. Rev. 125, 148 (2008), https://www.researchgate.net/publication/228298923_The_black_box (noting that elected prosecutors must make charging and sentencing decisions that respond to the evolving public conceptions of justice. “Current public opinion constantly rewrites the terms of a criminal code drafted by legislatures over many decades.”).

---

requires much more than fair play or a proportionate outcome in the context of a single case or trial. An elected prosecutor also has a duty as a “‘minister[] of justice’ to go beyond seeking convictions and legislatively authorized sentences in individual cases, and to think about the delivery of criminal justice on a systemic level, promoting criminal justice policies that further broader societal ends.”

Inherent in this larger duty to the public is the prosecutor’s obligation to spend limited criminal justice resources efficiently to protect the safety and well-being of the community. No prosecutor has the resources and ability to prosecute every violation of the law, nor would doing so promote public safety or be an effective use of public resources. Instead, elected prosecutors — empowered by their community to carry out the duties of that job — make decisions every day about where and how limited resources are best expended, what cases merit entry into the justice system, and what charges and penalties to seek when a case does warrant criminal prosecution.

Considerations about justice, promoting the best interests of individuals and the community, and resource allocation necessarily impact prosecutors’ decisions regarding policy, charging, and plea-bargaining. Prosecutors may, for example, choose to charge crimes with lesser penalties if those offenses are easier to prove or are more equitable given dispositions offered to other co-defendants. At other times, they may charge lesser crimes because of mitigating circumstances or trial challenges unique to the case, or because the conduct, though it may meet the technical requirements of a more serious charge, is less blameworthy than is typical. The same is true with sentencing enhancements or mandatory prison terms. A prosecutor may decide an extreme punishment is counterproductive, unnecessary, or unjust. Or she may choose to focus her office’s energies elsewhere— harsher penalties often carry additional burdens of proof, and a prosecutor may decide that the accompanying additional workload is not an effective use of resources.

In the 1990s and 2000s, our nation saw a proliferation of sentencing schemes authorizing extreme and severe penalties for a range of offenses and individuals. These laws played an oversized role in dramatically expanding the number of people we imprison and the length of time we hold them. As with charging decisions in general, however, different prosecutors applied these laws in divergent ways. Some sought enhanced penalties and mandatory

---

16 Id. at 996.
19 Cassidy, supra note 15, at 988 (noting that mandatory sentencing laws have not achieved uniformity in sentencing, but instead shifted sentencing discretion and authority to prosecutors who can reduce or dismiss the charge or penalty); Michael Tonry, The Mostly Unintended Effects of Mandatory Penalties: Two Centuries of Consistent Findings, in Michael Tonry, ed., Crime minimum terms with enthusiasm, using their discretion to broaden the impact of harsh and punitive legislation. Others leveraged these severe punishments only in rare cases, if at all. The use of the three strikes law by California’s District Attorney’s offices has been no different.

Perhaps most troubling, marginalized and underserved communities have been disproportionately affected by sentencing enhancements in California. For instance, over 80 percent of prisoners serving certain sentence enhancements are people of color. Over 90 percent of people serving a gang enhancement in California are Black or Latino. The three strikes law in particular has been applied disproportionately against Black defendants and people experiencing mental illness.

Furthermore, the most robust empirical evidence concerning criminal punishment, including research from the National Research Council and National Academy of Sciences, reveals quickly 21 Id.; see also Peter W. Greenwood, et al., Three Strikes Revisited: An Early Assessment of Implementation and Effects, DRR-2 905-NIJ (Aug. 1998), vi, https://www.ncjrs.gov/pdffiles1/nij/grants/194106.pdf (noting that different counties utilized three strikes law differently and that, for example, under the original version of the three strikes law, in Alameda County “only serious felonies are prosecuted under the three-strikes law. Other counties apply the law less selectively.”).

22 Id.; see also County of Los Angeles District Attorney’s Legal Policies Manual, §3.02.01 (March 12, 2020) (“In all instances in which a third strike case is pursued as a second strike case, Penal Code § 667.5(b) priors shall be plead and proved or admitted only when the priors are for sexually violent offenses as defined in Welfare and Institution Code § 6600(b).”).

25 See Letter from California Legislative Black Caucus to CDCR Secretary Scott Kernan (July 17, 2019); see also Stanford Three Strikes Project, Mental Illness Reduces Chances Of Three Strikes Sentence Reduction (2014), https://law.stanford.edu/press/mental-illness-reduces-chances-of-three-strikes-sentence-reduction/. The pending petition presents an opportune moment to help undo these decades of damage. diminishing public safety returns from long prison sentences, such as those imposed under three strikes and other sentencing enhancement laws.\textsuperscript{26}

Today, around the country, communities are retreating from these and other “tough on crime” policies that have driven mass incarceration by electing prosecutors with a new vision for our justice system.\textsuperscript{27} These prosecutors recognize that overly punitive approaches undermine public safety and community trust. They are making evidence-based decisions around when, and if, to exercise their tremendous power to pursue criminal charges or seek harsh sentences. This shift in perspective in no way justifies or permits judicial interference with the will of the voters or the exercise of the discretion that is fundamental to the prosecutorial function.

IV. Meaningful criminal justice reform requires elected prosecutors to implement and enforce policies to supervise their line attorneys’ exercise of discretion

An abundance of data and empirical evidence illustrates that the exercise of discretion across offices yields startlingly different criminal justice outcomes, even between offices within the same state and governed by the same laws.\textsuperscript{28} These patterns are largely attributable to “prosecutors responding to social norms and living up to group expectations about what it means

\begin{footnotesize}
\begin{itemize}
\item \textsuperscript{27} Allison Young, \textit{The Facts on Progressive Prosecutors}, Center for American Progress (Mar. 19, 2020), \url{https://www.americanprogress.org/issues/criminal-justice/reports/2020/03/19/481939/progressive-prosecutors-reforming-criminal-justice/}.
\item \textsuperscript{28} See, e.g., Center on Juvenile and Criminal Justice, \textit{supra} note 3; Vera Institute of Justice, \textit{Incarceration Trends in Texas} (Dec. 2019), \url{https://www.vera.org/downloads/pdfdownloads/state-incarceration-trends-texas.pdf} (reporting that “the highest rates of prison admissions [in Texas] are in rural counties, and pretrial detention continues to increase in smaller counties even as it is on the decline in larger counties’’); Felicity Rose, et al., \textit{An Examination of Florida’s Prison Population Trends}, Crime and Justice Institute (May 2017), at 12, \url{https://www-media.floridabar.org/uploads/2018/04/Criminal-Justice-Data-Study.pdf} (reporting that trends in prison admissions rates vary widely by jurisdiction in Florida, from a low of 55 per 100,000 residents to a high of 612.7).
\end{itemize} \end{footnotesize}
to be a prosecutor in that particular office.” Elected prosecutors play a critical role in forming — and reforming — these office norms. Office-wide policies, enacted by the elected prosecutor and consistent with the public’s sense of justice, play a critical role in communicating and changing the governing culture in an office. “Policy priorities in the office… might not result from any actual change in the criminal law, but they palpably change the norms that define what prosecutors are expected to do.”

But these policies can do little to shift norms if they are not enforceable. A DA’s ability to ensure adherence to his or her vision of justice, especially when seeking to change the culture of an office, is largely dependent on whether line prosecutors are required to comply with office guidelines. While some employees may feel a moral obligation to comply with a new approach, others will not, particularly when those new policies conflict with previous norms in the office.

Here, the ADDA has balked at the DA’s efforts to guide the discretion of deputy district attorneys. The lower court and Court of Appeals intervened, invalidating a range of DA-approved directives addressing sentencing and enhancements (not simply the DA’s new three strikes policy). In doing so, it substantially undermined the elected DA’s ability to manage and bring meaningful changes to the office; changes that were embraced by the voters of Los Angeles through the democratic process.

V. Second-guessing the policy decisions of the elected prosecutor undermines local control, invades clearly established separation of powers doctrine, and erodes the rights of voters to community self-governance

It should not escape the Court’s attention that, though presented as a purported issue of legality and prosecutorial ethics, this suit is simply an attempt by the ADDA to harness the authority of the court system to prevent DA Gascón from making policy decisions with which the deputies do not agree. Similarly, the Superior and Appellate Court’s intervention here set a dangerous precedent, as these Courts decided how elected prosecutors should utilize their office’s resources and allowed the Association (which opposed Gascon’s election) and unelected line prosecutors

29 Miller & Wright, supra note 13, at 131.
31 Id. at 374; see also Bruce Frederick and Don Stemen, The Anatomy of Discretion: An Analysis of Prosecutorial Decision Making, Vera Institute of Justice (Dec. 2012), at 15, https://www.ncjrs.gov/pdffiles1/nij/grants/240335.pdf (a study of decision-making by line prosecutors revealed that “norms and policies” limiting discretion are the “contextual factor with the most direct impact on prosecutorial decision making.”).
32 Miller & Wright, supra note 13, at 178.
33 Bibas, supra note 30, at 371 (elected prosecutors must “create a culture, structures, and incentives within prosecutors’ offices so that prosecutors use their discretion consistently and in accord with the public’s sense of justice”).
34 See Verified Petition for Writ of Mandate and/or Prohibition and Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief, 2, Dec. 30, 2020 (Appellant’s Appendix, Vol 1, A16-162).
to strip the elected District Attorney of his autonomy and authority as head of the office. The decision also necessarily eroded the rights of local voters to have a say in that vision.

District Attorneys, not their deputies, are directly accountable to the people and community they serve. These officials lay out their visions for public safety and in seeking office define their enforcement priorities. Local residents and voters choose the leader that best reflects and furthers their vision for the justice system in their community. If District Attorneys fail to adhere to promises made, or if the public decides it disapproves of them, they will inevitably be voted out of office.

In Los Angeles, the current District Attorney was elected with more than 1.6 million votes on a platform of reform-minded and less punitive approaches to a variety of conduct, including serious offenses previously punished with extreme prison terms. During the campaign, District Attorney Gascón specifically noted his reluctance to utilize sentencing enhancements or to regularly seek prison sentences in excess of fifteen years. The voters of Los Angeles embraced those goals. Once he took office and implemented clear policies to further those objectives, some old guard employees who do not share his vision mutinied and successfully asked the Superior Court to permit them to disobey the will of the Los Angeles electorate.

Unfortunately, the Superior Court and the Appellate Court sided with the rebelling ADDAs and agreed. This alone provides reason for the California Supreme Court to review this case. The integrity of the elections process, and the prosecutorial function writ large, underscore the need for this Court to grant review.

But worse, both the Superior Court and the Appellate Court have taken it upon themselves to instruct the elected prosecutor on how to use his office’s resources – on what to plead and prove in Court. These courts are substituting their own judgment for DA Gascón’s, taking an active role in the functioning of his office. In so doing, the courts have shattered long-standing separation of powers doctrine. As this Court has made clear, “[i]t is well settled that the prosecuting authorities, exercising executive functions, ordinarily have the sole discretion to determine whom to charge with public offenses and what charges to bring. This prosecutorial discretion to choose . . . arises from ‘the complex considerations necessary for the effective and efficient administration of law enforcement.’” People v. Birks, 960 P.2d 1073, 1089 (Cal. 1998). “The prosecution’s authority in this regard is founded, among other things, on the principle of separation of powers, and generally is not subject to supervision by the judicial branch.” Id. The lower courts have blown right through one of the bedrocks of our system of justice, placing itself in the seat of an elected official within a different branch of government.

---

36 Nichanian, supra note 5.
This ruling threatens the integrity of our entire legal system. When, as here, courts erode fundamental principles of constitutional law like the separation of powers doctrine into gravel, they also erode public faith in our legal system. People have no reason to believe that the law will always be used to protect them, and in turn, they will not trust those officials tasked with administering it. As a result, our jobs as elected prosecutors become immeasurably harder, and our communities become less safe. For this reason, too, this Court should grant review in this case.

VI. Conclusion

The Court of Appeal’s decision overrides the will of the voters and allows judges to substitute their judgment for that of an executive elected official when it comes to policy decisions and enforcement priorities. Such a decision cannot stand.

Tellingly, courts never interfered with prosecutorial discretion when that discretion was being used to ramp up prison and jail populations and fuel “tough on crime” thinking and mass incarceration. It is particularly troubling that, now, as reform-minded prosecutors are being elected in cities and counties across the country, some courts are attempting to intervene in prosecutorial decisions they perceive as too lenient. Such intervention is not only at odds with well-settled prosecutorial discretion and separation of powers doctrine, it also usurps local control and runs counter to the growing consensus across the political spectrum about the need to reverse the course of mass incarceration. Here, the Los Angeles community chose a District Attorney who promised to do exactly that — to bring a new vision of how to allocate resources and promote public safety to the office. The lower courts’ decisions threaten that community vision and set a dangerous precedent by permitting intrusion into discretion uniquely vested in our nation’s elected prosecutors. As such, we urge this Court to grant review in this case.

Dated: August 12, 2022

Respectfully submitted,

Erwin Chemerinsky
U.C. Berkeley School of Law, Dean
Berkeley, CA 94720
echemerinsky@law.berkeley.edu
(510) 642-6483

---

37 For example, where a judge tried to compel Suffolk County (Boston), Massachusetts District Attorney Rachael Rollins to prosecute a protester case, the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court promptly overruled the decision. See Roberto Scalese, Mass. High Court Sides With Suffolk DA Rollins In Battle With Judge Over Protester Charge, WBUR.org (Sept. 9, 2019), https://wbur.fm/2Elz1g6.
Miriam Krinsky
Executive Director
Fair and Just Prosecution, a sponsored project of the Tides Center krinskym@krinsky.la
(818) 416-5218

Michael Romano
Three Strikes Project, Director
Stanford Law School
559 Nathan Abbott Way
Stanford, CA 94305
mromano@stanford.edu
(650) 736-8670
CA SBN 232182
Counsel to Amicus Curiae

Signatories to Amicus Letter

Diana Becton
District Attorney, Contra Costa County, California

Wesley Bell
Prosecuting Attorney, St. Louis County, Missouri

Buta Biberaj
Commonwealth’s Attorney, Loudoun County, Virginia

Sherry Boston
District Attorney, DeKalb County, Georgia

Chesa Boudin
Former District Attorney, City and County of San Francisco, California

Alvin Bragg
District Attorney, New York County (Manhattan), New York

Aisha Braveboy
State’s Attorney, Prince George’s County, Maryland
Douglas Chin
Former Attorney General, Hawaii
Former Lieutenant Governor, Hawaii

John Choi
County Attorney, Ramsey County (St. Paul), Minnesota

Dave Clegg
District Attorney, Ulster County, New York

Shameca Collins
District Attorney, 6th Judicial District, Mississippi

Laura Conover
County Attorney, Pima County (Tucson), Arizona

John Creuzot
District Attorney, Dallas County, Texas

Satana Deberry
District Attorney, Durham County, North Carolina

Parisa Dehghani-Tafti
Commonwealth’s Attorney, Arlington County and the City of Falls Church, Virginia

Steve Descano
Commonwealth’s Attorney, Fairfax County, Virginia

Michael Dougherty
District Attorney, 20th Judicial District (Boulder), Colorado

Mark Dupree
District Attorney, Wyandotte County (Kansas City), Kansas

Matt Ellis
District Attorney, Wasco County, Oregon

Keith Ellison
Attorney General, Minnesota

Ramin Fatehi
Commonwealth’s Attorney, City of Norfolk, Virginia

Kimberly M. Foxx
State’s Attorney, Cook County (Chicago), Illinois
Glenn Funk
District Attorney, Nashville, Tennessee

Gil Garcetti
Former District Attorney, Los Angeles County, California

Kimberly Gardner
Circuit Attorney, City of St. Louis, Missouri

Stan Garnett
Former District Attorney, 20th Judicial District (Boulder), Colorado

José Garza
District Attorney, Travis County (Austin), Texas

Sarah F. George
State’s Attorney, Chittenden County (Burlington), Vermont

Sim Gill
District Attorney, Salt Lake County, Utah

Terry Goddard
Former Attorney General, Arizona

Joe Gonzales
District Attorney, Bexar County (San Antonio), Texas

Deborah Gonzalez
District Attorney, Western Judicial Circuit (Athens), Georgia

Eric Gonzalez
District Attorney, Kings County (Brooklyn), New York

Mark Gonzalez
District Attorney, Nueces County (Corpus Christi), Texas

Christian Gossett
Former District Attorney, Winnebago County, Wisconsin

Andrea Harrington
District Attorney, Berkshire County, Massachusetts

Scott Harshbarger
Former Attorney General, Massachusetts
Former District Attorney, Middlesex County, Massachusetts
Jim Hingeley
Commonwealth’s Attorney, Albemarle County, Virginia

John Hummel
District Attorney, Deschutes County, Oregon

Elizabeth K. Humphries
Commonwealth’s Attorney, City of Fredericksburg, Virginia

Natasha Irving
District Attorney, 6th Prosecutorial District, Maine

Justin F. Kollar
Former Prosecuting Attorney, County of Kaua’i, Hawaii

Lawrence S. Krasner
District Attorney, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

Rebecca Like
Prosecuting Attorney, County of Kaua’i, Hawaii

Brian S. Mason
District Attorney, 17th Judicial District, Colorado

Beth McCann
District Attorney, 2nd Judicial District (Denver), Colorado

Karen McDonald
Prosecuting Attorney, Oakland County, Michigan

Ryan Mears
Prosecuting Attorney, Marion County (Indianapolis), Indiana

Brian Middleton
District Attorney, Fort Bend County, Texas

Stephanie Morales
Commonwealth’s Attorney, Portsmouth, Virginia

Marilyn Mosby
State’s Attorney, Baltimore City, Maryland

Jody Owens
District Attorney, Hinds County (Jackson), Mississippi
Alonzo Payne
Former District Attorney, 12th Judicial District (San Luis), Colorado

Jim Petro
Former Attorney General, Ohio

Joseph Platania
Commonwealth’s Attorney, City of Charlottesville, Virginia

Harold F. Pryor
State Attorney, 17th Judicial Circuit (Fort Lauderdale), Florida

Karl A. Racine
Attorney General, District of Columbia

Ira Reiner
Former District Attorney, Los Angeles County, California
Former City Attorney, Los Angeles, California

Stephen Rosenthal
Former Attorney General, Virginia

Marian Ryan
District Attorney, Middlesex County, Massachusetts

Dan Satterberg
Prosecuting Attorney, King County (Seattle), Washington

Eli Savit
Prosecuting Attorney, Washtenaw County (Ann Arbor), Michigan

Mike Schmidt
District Attorney, Multnomah County (Portland), Oregon

Carol Siemon
Prosecuting Attorney, Ingham County (Lansing), Michigan

Eric Sparr
District Attorney, Winnebago County, Wisconsin

David Sullivan
District Attorney, Northwestern District, Massachusetts

Raúl Torrez
District Attorney, Bernalillo County (Albuquerque), New Mexico
Suzanne Valdez
District Attorney, Douglas County (Lawrence), Kansas

Matthew Van Houten
District Attorney, Tompkins County, New York

Cyrus R. Vance
Former District Attorney, New York County (Manhattan), New York

Lynneice Washington
District Attorney, Jefferson County, Bessemer District, Alabama

Jared Williams
District Attorney, Augusta, Georgia

Monique H. Worrell
State Attorney, 9th Judicial Circuit (Orlando), Florida
Gascón v. The Association of Deputy District Attorneys for Los Angeles County
California Supreme Court No. S275478

PROOF OF SERVICE

I declare that I am employed with Three Strikes Project at Stanford Law School, whose address is 559 Nathan Abbott Way, Stanford, CA, in Santa Clara County. I am not a party to this case. I am over the age of 18 years. I further declare that on this date, I served a copy of the foregoing Amicus Letter using TrueFiling to the following parties.

COUNSEL FOR RESPONDENT, ASSOCIATION OF DEPUTY DISTRICT ATTORNEYS FOR LOS ANGELES COUNTY:

Eric Marc George
egeorge@bgrfirm.com
Thomas Peter O'Brien
tobrien@bgrfirm.com
David Junxiong Carroll
dcarroll@bgrfirm.com
Matthew Olaf Kussman
mkussman@bgrfirm.com
Browne George Ross O'Brien Annaguey & Ellis LLP
2121 Avenue of the Stars
Suite 2800
Los Angeles, CA 90067

COUNSEL FOR PETITIONER, GEORGE GASCÓN, DISTRICT ATTORNEY OF LOS ANGELES COUNTY:

Diana M. Teran, Deputy District Attorney
dteran@da.lacounty.gov
211 West Temple Street, 12th Floor
Los Angeles, California 90012
(213) 974-3500

Robert E. Dugdale
rdugdale@kbkfirm.com
Laura W. Brill
lbrill@kbkfirm.com
Kendall Brill & Kelly LLP
10100 Santa Monica Blvd
Suite 1725
Los Angeles, CA 90067

Dawyn Harrison
dharrison@counsel.lacounty.gov
Adrian Gerard Gragas
agragas@counsel.lacounty.gov
Jonathan Crothers McCaverty jmccaverty@counsel.lacounty.gov
L.A. County Office of the County Counsel
500 W. Temple St.
Los Angeles, CA 90012

Stephanie Yonekura
stephanie.yonekura@hoganlovells.com
Hogan Lovells
1999 Avenue of The Stars, Suite 1400
Los Angeles, CA 90067

Neal Katyal
neal.katyal@hoganlovells.com
Jo-Ann Sagar
jo-ann.sagar@hoganlovells.com
Danielle Stempel
danielle.stempel@hoganlovells.com
Hogan Lovells
555 Thirteenth Street NW
Washington, DC 20004

COUNSEL FOR THE ATTORNEY GENERAL:
Office of the Attorney General
State of California docketinglaawt@doj.ca.gov
300 S. Spring Street, 1st Floor
Los Angeles, CA 90013

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the above is true and correct. Executed at Stanford, CA, this 12th day of August, 2022.

/s/ Susan Champion
Susan Champion
Deputy Director
Three Strikes Project
Stanford Law School